I don't know what-- We didn't hit anything!

John watched the altimeter drop, and felt his hope go along with it.

"I can't do anything.
We're going down hard!"

"Unbuckle your seatbelt and get Simon. I need you to be brave now!"

Vonna's trembling fingers fumbled with the buckle. Her heart pounded in her ears. She wanted so badly for this to be another dream.

Ahhh!!

What's happening?

Hold on tight, baby!

We've lost
an engine!

It's okay
Simon.

"This is all going to happen very fast, Vonna. I need you to listen and do exactly as I say!"

She found courage in her father's voice. As long as they stayed together, everything was going to be okay.

Hisssss
